NEW PROCESS WILL SAVE WASTE PRODUCTS IN IRON

Experiment Now Being Tried at Edgar Thomson Works

IRON IS A GOOD GRADE

From 60 to 65 Per Cent of What Has Been Waste Can be Saved

What has every indication of being a successful experiment is being tried this week at the Edgar Thompson plant of the Carnegie Steel company at Braddock, to save a large percentage of the waste product in the manufacture of iron and steel. A new process which is the invention of a chemist by the name of Scott is being used, the strictest secrecy being maintained in the working out of the experiment. If results materialize as now indicated, it will affect the big blast furnace at Bamford and will figure in every other development of that nature in the valley.

Already there has been enough success realized by the new process to demonstrate its value to the steel and iron industry of the future. At Braddock a temporary furnace has been erected and Chemist Scott employed. By the new scheme from 60 to 65 per cent what has heretofore been waste iron and slag "down comer," is being transformed into a fair product of iron.

Cars made out of heavy structural iron, lined with fire clay and fire brick are used to carry the molten slag to the furnace. This slag deposited in the furnace is subjected to a greater heat than is needed in the manufacture of iron and steel by the ordinary method. The cars which are about 15 by 20 feet are handled by electric motors and heavy chains and wires By a secret process the iron in the slag is crystalized and then by another process much the same as is employed in cooling iron and steel by the usual way, the product is prepared for market.

Another experiment is being tried by the Carnegie Steel company to save other waste products, among which is graphite.

Woman Asks for Election

One of Weaker Sex Wants Position as School Director in Youngwood

Youngwood has the first woman to seek a public office in Westmoreland county. Mrs. S. C. Hurst, who has been nominated for school director, is making a plucky fight for the election and is receiving staunch support from the electors. The first woman nominee in the county is a modest, womanly little woman, but eminently qualified for the office. Mrs. Hurst was formerly Miss Isadore Simpson, who served a number of terms as a Mount Pleasant township teacher.

General Superintendent O'Donnell and Party Begin on Trip

GO THROUGH CHARLEROI

General Superintendent R. L. O'Donnell and a party of superintendents and supervisors of the Pittsburg Monongahela and Conamaugh divisions of the Pennsylvania railroad passed through Charleroi this morning on their annual inspection tour. About 40 or 50 were in the party.

The train passed through Charleroi on a "dog trot." In order to give the officials as nearly a complete view as possible of the new station the engineer slowed up the train considerably. Mr. O'Donnell and A. J. Mitchell, superintendent of the Monongahela division who was in the party this morning were here on a previous occasion when General Manager S. C. Long and others of the chief official force accompanied them. The party continued on their general inspection tour southward.

GOV. TENER COMES HOME TO CAST VOTE

State Executive Spending Day Here--Came Unexpectedly Monday Evening and Visited With Friends

Rather unexpectedly Gov. J. K. Tener came into town on the 5:51 train from Pittsburg Monday evening to spend a short time here and to vote today. Mrs. Tener came from Pittsburg today and the Governor and his wife are guests at the Hotel Arthur. Tonight Gov. Tener will be an honor guest at the annual game banquet of the Charleroi Lodge of Elks, of which he is a member.

Away from the cares and duties of State for a brief spell, Gov. Tener relaxed and enjoyed himself to the utmost among his old friends and neighbors Monday evening. Today he is circulating among the people here shaking hands and bidding them good day. Attending the Palace Theatre with a friend Monday he enjoyed the picture show and then went to the home of a friend where he spent the remainder of the evening.

Gov. Tener votes now in the first precinct. He is interested in the Republican ticket in the county and feels it is a winner.

JUDGE SPEAKS OF ROADS TO GRAND JURY

Duty of County Commissioners is to Present Petitions

Giving utterance to some sound advice concerning the road question, which has been the subject of so much political controversy during the campaign, Judge J. F. Taylor organized the grand jury which convened at Washington yesterday. Tweny members of the panel were in attendance and D. E. Templeton of North Strabane township was appointed foreman. Concerning the road petitions which the grand jury must consider Judge Tayor said:

"The constitution grants every man the privileges of petition and when a petition properly signed by the citizens, asking for a road improvement, is presented to the county commissioners, it then becomes their bounden duty to send that petition to the court. In a spirit of fairness no one can call such a road petition any man's road and certainly not the county commissioners' road. The county commissioners would be remiss in their duty if they did not bring the matter to the attention of the court whether it be one road or 100 roads that are petitioned for

"You must throw open the doors of the jury room when hearing these petitions and allow the citizens to talk on their need, to discuss them pro and con and give due weight to the evidence produced You are to take into consideration the need of the road, its length and width, cost per mile, the grading and the need and use such a road will have Give the road petitions a fair hearing, apply your business acumen to the proposition and encourage those communities that show progress and a desire to get out of the mud."

The court also deplored the increasing amount of criminal business in the county due to the influx of foreign and other labor into the new industrial centers. Henry Sheets, John H. Frye and A. B. Brown of Charleroi are among the grand jurors. The body adjourned until after election, and on Wednesday resume their duties.

CHARLES WALZ A WELL KNOWN MAN

The Pittsburg papers this morning contain a more extended notice of the career of Charles Walz of Wilkinsburg, the father of Mrs. Herman Heupel of Charleroi who died at his home Sunday night, aged 66 years. Mr. Walz was a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted at the age of 17. After the war he went to Europe, where he studied under some of the most famous teachers of art at that time. Among the famous men whom he painted are Judge Everrett of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, and many of the paintings of past masters for the Masonic Temple in Philadelphia. He was a member of many societies, among them being Post 259, G. A. R.; Jefferson Lodge 288, F. & A. M.; German Club of Pittsburg and the Technischer Verein. His widow and two daughters survive, one of whom is Mrs. Heupel.

SPEAKER COX IS TAKEN BY GRIM REAPER

Death Comes Suddenly to Widely Known Member of State Legislature

Governor John K. Tener's visit to Charleroi is somewhat saddened by the death of Hon. John F. Cox, which occured Monday evening at his home in Homestead. In addition to being Speaker of the House of Representatives of the recent session of the Legislature and a hearty supporter of the Governor's policies, Mr. Cox was a warm personal friend of the former and had many friends also in this section . Mr. Cox had been in poor health for some time, but his death came suddenly and unexpectedly to his friends.

Governor Tener declared that the death of Speaker Cox was a great shock to him. He paid him a high tribute and said:

"The news of Speaker Cox's death has come to me as a surprise and great shock Only a few days ago I talked with him, and while his physical appearance did not indicate robust health, he was cheerful and interested in matters of State-wide importance, as well as concerning the dedicatory exercises incident to the opening of the new school building in his own home town of Homestead

"While I have known Mr. Cox for a long time, it was only during the past year when I have been able to observe his many splendid qualities that I fully appreciated what a valuable man he was to his State. During every moment of that session he was a needle to the north; absolutely honest and fearless. His every act during the recent session of the Legislature was prompted by a spirit of fairness, justice, and for the best interest of every citizen and resident of our Commonwealth.

"My greatest sympathy goes out to his wife and children at this dark hour, when the severest blow has fallen upon them."

Governor Tener and his staff will attend the funeral Sunday afternoon. Services will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church at Tenth avenue and Ann street, Homestead, at 2 p. m., with Rev. B. B. Woolf, pastor in charge. Rev. L. R. Jones of West Newton, chaplain in the House of Representatives will assist Interment will follow immediately after the services in the Homestead Cemetery.

Mr. Cox, who was in his 60th year, was a native of Allegheny county. He was an attorney and ranks high in his profession. He was a member of the M. E. church of Homestead and active in fraternal circles, being a member of the Elks and Eagles. He is survived by his wife and a son and daughter.

CHAIRMAN PREDICTS VICTORY

Carothers Says Republican Ticket Will Win by Big Margin

AN UNUSUAL CAMPAIGN

Advices from Washington state that Republican County Chairman C. E. Carothers last night predicted a majority of 3,000 votes for the entire Republican ticket today. Practically every section of the county had been heard from at a late hour and from over the entire county the word was that the fusion organization would be dealt a death blow.

In his statement last night Chairman Carothers declared that the campaign just concluded was one of the most unusual, from a standpoint of bitterness and unnecessary abuse, the county has experienced in its entire political history.

Villification of candidates on the Republican ticket as the outgrowth of personal antagonism and jealousy early in the campaign reacted at the end against the detratctors of Republicanism.

"I have utmost confidence in the intelligence of Washington county people and firmly believe that the counting of the ballots will unfold one of the greatest tributes that has ever been paid Republicanism in this county," concluded Chairman Carothers.

A commodious cabin for the use of patrons in stormy and cold weather is provided, and windows in this permits sufficient light in day time and lanterns will be used at night to light the interior of the cabin.

Candidates and Their Friends Hustling About

QUIETNESS PREVAILING

Many Split Ballots Being Cast Apparently--Republicans in Lead

Lively interest is being shown locally in the general election today but everything is quiet. Indications point to a heavy local vote. As early as the polls opened this morning there were workers out for various candidates using what influence they had in favor of those they were supporting.

Apparently there is considerable splitting of tickets a fact evidenced by thet ime it takes voters to mark their tickets. Still it is believed that there are many straight tickets being cast. While it is believed that the Republican ticket will go through without much trouble there is some doubt among the leading Republicans of Charleroi as to the entire success of the local ticket It is likely that most of the splitting of tickets will be on municipal officers.

Local interest centers on the election of councilmen and school directors. There are three councilmen to be elected for the full term, and one for the short term. There are seven schools directors to be elected, three for six years, two for four years and two for two years. There is also considerable interest in the justice of the peace election, but it is believed the Republican candidates will pull through without much trouble.

The polls opened at 7 o'clock and voting was begun in the various precincts promptly. There is an absence of rancor that in many other communities is noticeable. Over the county it is believed there will be a good vote.

EVERY VOTER'S DUTY.

By the time this isue of the Mail reaches its readers the most of the electors will have cast their ballots in the county and municipal election that is being held today. Many electors, however, remain away from the polls under the mistaken idea that the election of local candidates is not of sufficient warrant to leave their business affairs to cast their ballots. It is to these that this last appeal is made—to urge them to exercise their right of franchise and vote their convictions at the polls for the candidates of their choice.

While the local elections may not seem important to many people it is these very offices that have to do with their daily life. The conduct of the public schools has to do with the primary education of our children, and constitutes in most cases the entire educational training that will be received. The borough affairs are important also and have a direct bearing upon the business prosperity of the town. In county affairs the people are directly concerned, as much of their well being and comfort is dependent upon the correct and economic conduct of the county fiscal business.

Presumably the qualifications of the various candidate have been settled in their respective primary elections. Each ticket had a wide range of candidates to choose from, and each party now has a ticket to vote for that represents a choice of the majority of his compatriots, who agree along the lines of certain policies. It is therefore incumbent upon these electors to support the ticket chosen at the primary, in the proper conduct of political and party ethics. The whole question of local government is up to the voters today, and every voter should exercise his right of franchise.

NEED STATE OVERSIGHT

According to the Philadelphia Press the testimony of engineers on the construction of the Austin dam is strongly condemnatory of that structure. Such overwhelming catastrophies as that which so nearly obliterated the town of Austin are usually characterized as "the act of God," but the evidence accumulates here that this destruction of life and property was "the act of men," of those who are responsible for a dam badly conctructed and imperfectly secured on a very faulty foundation.

The engineer for the Board of Water Supply for New York city testifies that the dam was too thin for its height. Prof McKibben of Lehigh University, testifies that the foundation, design, construction and operation of the dam were all faulty. Other engineers describe the worrk in the dam as "skinned work." Economy clearly had more consideration than security in its construction. Big risks were taken. Whether knowingly or not, and the disaster which followed was plainly invited by the weakness of the structure.

This is the evidence of experts who spoke on this matter with unusual harmony. The heavy weight of the dam was imposed on sandstone resting on shale. It was undermined by the pressure of water in the dam, slid forward, cracked and leaked. Its weakness was proclaimed in a startling manner for several months with slight repairs under heavy pressure of water. It was all the time a dreadful, continuance menace to the town below, which nevertheless waited unprepared for its inevitable doom.

The evidence of those engineering authorities is a most amazing revalation of the fearful risks men take in their ignorance and confidence and a conclusive argument for a vigilant State oversight of dams that will prevent them from becoming at any hour as dangerous and deadly as a bloody battle or wasting pestilence.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The presence of Governor John K. Tener and Executive Controller S. C. Todd in Charleroi, who came from the State capital for the purpose of casting their ballots at the fall election, recalls an incident which occurred during the summer. Shortly after the Plate Glass fastory shut down, which with the idleness of the Charleroi Coal works made things rather dull locally, a Fallowfield township resident who is noted for his drollery, poked his head in the door of the Bank of Charleroi and said to Kerfoot W. Daly, the cashier:

"They tell me, Kerfoot, that your town of Charleroi has all gone to h——l since John Tener and Sam Todd's gone to Harrisburg. And they also tell me, Kerfoot that they've got John Jenkins down to Harrisburg smellin' milk."

Speaking of John Jenkins recalls another story the boys about town tell on him when he was officiating as leader and drummer in the orchestra at the Star theatre here. The house was running vaudeville, and once when a lady dancer was on the boards John sought to have some fun at her expense. Procuring three or four old linen collars he laid them down beside the instruments which he operated. Presently when the dancer was executing some of her most animated steps the drummer leaned over and snatching one of the collars tore it suddenly apart.

The loud rip brought the dancer to an abrupt halt, and her hands stole quickly to the back of her waistband. Finding it intact she again resumed her dancing, when she was startled by another loud rip. Again she took a hurried inventory of her somewhat scanty attire, but could find nothing wrong, but when another loud rip resounded through the theatre, she cut the act short and hastily retired, refusing utterly to respond to the hearty encore to which she was accorded.

Youth Had Much to Learn.

An English gentleman once fell from his horse and injured his thumb. The pain increasing, he was obliged to send for a surgeon. One day the doctor was unable to visit the patient, and therefore sent his son instead. "Have you visited the Englishman?" said his father, in the evening. "Yes," replied the young man, "and I have drawn out a thorn which I ascertained to be the chief cause of his agony." "Fool!" exclaimed the father "I trusted you had more sense; now there is an end to the job."

Degrees of Opinion.

Let us not say to ourselves that the best truth always lies in moderation, in the decent average. . . . At the time of the Spanish inquisition the opinion of good sense and of the just medium was certainly that people ought not to burn too large a number of heretics; extreme and unreasonable opinion demanded that they should burn none at all.—Maeterlinck.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless, and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge, nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons and aged people as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. Carroll's Drug Store, 623 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi.

An Incident of the Road.

"Stop!" cried the man in the road. "You are exceeding the speed limit."

"That's all nonsense," retorted Binks, bringing his car to a standstill.

"That's what they all say," said the man in the road, climbing into the car. "You can tell your story to the magistrate at Hinktown—jest seven miles up the road. Start along, please."

They drove on in silence to Hinktown, where, as the car drew up in front of the courthouse, the man in the road got out.

"Much obliged for the lift," said he. "You can settle that matter of speed with the magistrate if you want to. As a stranger in these here parts I don't think my word would go for much."

May the merit be his, as he was the owner of the hat!"

DRIVING OUT THE BOGUS FOOD MEN

Effective Work of State Bureau in Behalf of Consumer.

DEVICES OF ADULTERATORS

Commissioner Foust's Agents In Every County — Vigorous Enforcement of New Laws.

The adulterators and poisoners of food products are being driven out of business in Pennsylvania. The determination of the state administration to protect the health of the people by the rigid enforcement of the pure food laws is removing the evils of an industry, which in recent years has invaded every community in this country. The regulation of the manufacture and sale of food products in Pennsylvania is being commented on approvingly by officials of the agricultural department at Washington, as well as by officials of the dairy and food commissions in every other state.

Effective legislation for the protection of the consumer from the manufacturer of bogus foods was made necessary by new conditions. With the rapid increase of population there came a change in the methods of preparation and manufacture of food products unknown a quarter of a century ago. With these manufactures came the doper and adulterator. And he increased and multiplied. Hardly a commodity that finds a place upon the table of the consumer escaped his sinister influence. This state of affairs led to the enactment of laws regulating the manufacture of food products and appropriations for their enforcement by the dairy and food commissioner.

Pure Food Campaign Statewide.

The fight for pure food for the people is a notable feature of the administration of Governor John K. Tener. In many of his speeches during the campaign last year Governor Tener emphasized the necessity of vigorous measures against the dopers, and his pledges on the stump in this direction are being fulfilled. This is made possible by supplementary pure food enactments by the legislature at its recent session. James Foust, the dairy and food commissioner, who is directing the campaign against manufacturers of bogus foods with marked ability, has assumed an uncompromising attitude toward the violator of the pure food laws. Into every county the commissioner has sent agents to secure evidence upon which to base prosecutions. The result of his vigorous methods are indicated by a long list of convictions during the past eight months.

The work of the food department in providing the consumer with products of high standard is illustrated by the enforcement of an act of the legislature signed by Governor Tener April 6. This legislation is aimed at the manufacturer of spurious sausages. It defines the process of sausage making and establishes the lawful ingredients of that product by defining what are not lawful ingredients. As the season is approaching when buckwheat cakes and sausage occupy a prominent place in the breakfast menu, the sausage producer is a busy man.

The Shrinking Sausage Links.

It has been the practice of many manufacturers to take 60 per cent of meat, and add thereto 15 per cent of potato flour or some other cereal, permitting the addition of 25 per cent water, which the flour would readily absorb. The sausage looks all right in the market, but when it is put into the frying pan it begins to shrink like a cake of ice in the sun. When the cook makes a stab at the stuffed skin the water blows after the fashion of a bursted fire hose, and the plethoric link diminishes in size with amazing suddenness.

Now meat costs the butcher an average of 10 cents per pound and potato flour is worth a trifle less than 3 cents, while the water is clear profit, hence the temptation to construct the sausage along unlawful lines.

Adulterations in the sausage line are not confined to the pork variety. Bologna is mixed in much the same way and is also boiled in a harmful chemical concoction to give it a rich color, all of which is forbidden by law. Commissioner Foust insists that people who pay the current high prices for sausage are entitled to have their purchase all meat, with the privilege of adding the other ingredients themselves, if they so desire.

No Compromise With Offenders.

While the economical spirit of modern merchandizing manages to work up all of the animal, including horns, hoofs and intestines, into by-products, in the future in Pennsylvania the product must be just what it is represented when sold to the consumer or the state bureau will know the reason why. The commissioner has no desire to take snap judgment on any one or cause [illegible] because of real ignorance, and [illegible] gives fair warning to offenders.

The [illegible] sausage manufacturers and [illegible] urging that the enforce[illegible] law be suspended with [illegible] goods bought by retailers [illegible] upon their shelves prior to [illegible] sage of the sausage law, but [illegible] st has replied that the manufacturers must take back their goods. Throughout the state Commissioner Foust's agents are at work among the sausage manufacturers. The new law provides that upon conviction the manufacturer shall pay a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $200 or to undergo imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, or either or both, in the discretion of the court.

Warning For the Oyster Man.

With the coming of the "R" months the oyster dealer is again active. The skeptical buyer of the shucked bivalves may inquire, "and how busy is the pump?" The skeptical may take comfort. The state solons have considered his woes and provided for his relief. The dairy and food commissioner has instructed his force of agents to be on guard, that the unlawful business partnership between the oyster pail and the pump shall be dissolved and the practice ended by which the public is compelled to pay the regular price of oysters, 40 cents per quart, for water and so-called juice. Recently a woman went to Commissioner Foust's office with a vessel containing oysters. She had paid 40 cents for the contents. On examination it was found that there was less than a pint of oysters. The rest was ice and water. The pure food law forbids the addition to any article of food of any substance cheaper than the original or anything that will adulterate it in any manner. Some fish dealers are in the habit of buying oysters and filling up the tubs with ice. The ice melts, and the resultant water is sold to the customers as juice. Under the law the customer is entitled to oysters packed as closely as they will lie together.

Commissioner Foust has informed the dealers of the law's requirements, and any dealer who finds himself in the clutches of the law for adding ice or water to oysters will be prosecuted. If the dealers want to avoid trouble they should sell their oysters from the original packages and place the ice around the outside, as the law requires.

Milk Dealers Pay Fines.

The conviction of nearly 400 milkmen for violating the milk law enacted by the legislature last spring has had a wholesome effect upon the dealer who regarded that law with indifference. During one month the new milk law was put to the test in 261 towns in fifty-two counties. In 211 towns there were violations, showing that there was vast need for a law establishing standards of milk and cream purity in the state. Agents of the department discovered that many dealers scouted the law when they heard of its existence and continued to adulterate their milk and cream, feeling certain that they would not be detected.

Milk dealers in many communities had a system by which they were promptly informed of the arrival of the state agent and thus were enabled to conceal their practices. Recently the pure food agents have worked so quietly that they were enabled to secure samples from these violators without being suspected. The first intimation the men who watered their milk had came when they were invited to the magistrate's office to pay a fine of $25. They paid and decided that in the end it would be more profitable to sell real milk and cream.

Now that the pasture months are closing and the price of butter has advanced the oleo man renews his smile. Lest he forget the past and the householder be uneasy, a warning word comes from the dairy and food commissioner. The legislature permits the sale of oleo, but only such as is kept free from all coloration causing it to look like yellow butter. The superior court, in an opinion written by Judge Rice, has declared that the law prohibits the sale of oleo made in resemblance of butter, no matter by what process this coloration is secured. Upon this decision the commissioner takes his stand. The legislature regarded this provision so important for the protection of the consumer and of the honest dealer and butter maker that, despite great pressure, it refused at the last session to strike it from the law.

Convictions In Oleo Cases.

Cases brought by Commissioner Foust before the courts of Schuylkill, Northampton and Venango counties for violations of the oleo law have been terminated by the conviction of the offenders. Judge Kennedy, of Allegheny county, recently sentenced a dealer to pay a fine of $1000 and for one year's parole for a second offense. It is significant that of all the federal oleo licenses issued in Pittsburg by the internal revenue bureau for the year beginning July 1, 1911, not one was sought for the sale of colored oleo, that is, of oleomargarine colored by added dyes. This is a marked improvement in a district where in recent years many federal licenses were issued for the sale of such oleo, illegal in Pennsylvania, and where "moonshiners" sold great quantities of dyed oleo without taking out either federal or state licenses. The food bureau's agents have been instructed to visit every store in their respective districts and vigilantly see to it that the law is obeyed.

During Governor Tener's administration, embracing the period from Jan. 17 to Oct. 1, the dairy and food bureau analyzed about 8000 food samples and prosecutions to the number of about 1000 were started. These prosecutions were based upon violation of laws regulating the sale of eggs, doped fruit syrups, ice creams low in fat, lard, fresh meats drugged with sulphites, milk low in fat and containing formaldehyde, non-alcoholic drinks sweetened with saccharin, a poison, and including ginger ale containing pepper, foods adulterated in various ways, including oleomargarine, fresh sausage containing flour and water, vinegar, distilled or colored, and other products.

The campaign for pure food does not cost the taxpayer a dollar. On the contrary, although not intended to be a revenue collecting agency, the state bureau is more than self-supporting. During the period of January to October the dairy and food commissioner collected in fines and from other sources $110,294. The total disbursements of his office were $64,508. All receipts of the office are turned into the state treasury for the use of the commonwealth, the expenses of the bureau being paid from a specific appropriation made by the legislature.

Misuse of Via.

A stroll through the shipping district gives many a wrench to the purist's soul. "In front of all the commission houses," he said, "I see bales and barrels labeled 'via boat' or 'via train.' Why does not somebody tell the shipping clerks that every time they write that they are insulting the English and every other language? 'Via' can be applied properly only to the place through which a parcel passes, not to the means of transportation."

Youth's Commercial Instinct.

A boy of nine, who had never previously witnessed a collection in church, was deeply interested, and when the bags were finally borne off by clergy and choir in procession, proclaimed in a loud whisper of sympathetic excitement, "Now they're going to share it out!"

Fitted for the Business.

"My son John," proudly remarked Mrs. McAllister to some one who had inquired about the family, "he's runnin' the drug store now. He's been doing it for a year or more. You know he was to college an' studied palmistry so's to fit himself for the business."

Honest Advice to Consumptives

Somehow there exists a vast amount of skepticism as to the possibility of curing Consumption. We state none but facts, and are sincere in what we assert.

If ourselves afflicted with Tuberculosis, we should do precisely what we ask others to do—take Eckman's Alterative promptly and faithfully. The reason we should do this and warrant we have for asking all Consumptives to take it, is that we have the reports of many cures, one of which follows:—

1619 Susquehanna Ave., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, the number totaled nearly one hundred. Our family physician advised another climate, as to remain would probably be fatal; however, I remained and in February of 1902, I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. I was again advised to go to another part of the country. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I learned of Eckman's Alterative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced 'well' or 'cured.' Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneumonia and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a cure.

"I am at present in excellent health and feel that as long as I can obtain Eckman's Alterative, I have no fear of Consumption. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done."

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever; Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and

At the Methodist Church last night the pastor, Rev. F. A. Richards, gave an address on "The Pharisse and the Publican." There was deep interest manifested and great expectations are aroused in the coming of Evangelist Burrows and Singer Jennings who arrived today and will take charge of the meetings tonight. They concluded their metings at Windber, Pa., on Sunday, when 480 persons united with the various churches of the town as a result of their efforts.

These evangelists usually use a large tabernacle which seats a congregation of 3,000 and a choir of 3[illegible]0. The tabernacle will not be used [illegible]ere at this time, but services will be [illegible]held in the Methodist church. Dr. B[illegible]rrows is said to be the peer of W. A. [illegible]Sunday. The Ghost Walked.

The mistaken idea that one's troubles end with death was set aside in Starwich v. Washington Cut Glass Company 21 Wash. Dec. No. 18 (Adv. Sheets), in which the supreme court of Washington first announced that the defendant corporation "gave up the ghost." How it died is not fully apparent, but having yielded its spirit to the one who made it, it still retained its worldly cares, for in the next sentence the court said: "But that did not deliver it from the burden of its contracts."

Evidently, in this case, the ghost walked, being "in torment." Who shall henceforth say that corporations have no souls?—Case and Comment.

Gem of Ancient Architecture.

The Oratory of Gallerus, situated on the Dingle promontory in Kerry, is probably the oldest place of Christian worship in the United Kingdom. It is unique in its architecture, for it was built without mortar, and the arch was formed direct from the ground level by the peculiar placing of the stones. In the east gable is the only window in the building, while in the west is the small doorway. The building, which is now one of the national monuments of the Emerald isle, has recently been restored to perfect condition.

HAD NO PERMIT FOR DOGGIE

So the Woman Dropped Her Pet Off the Car and Resumed Her Seat.

The little woman with the laundry blue and gangrenous green flowers on her hat all scrambled up into a Wilton rug design got on the car carrying a dog. It was one of those aristocratic, foolish-looking dogs that couldn't overtake a Welsh rabbit.

"Got a permit for that dawg?" asked the conductor when he came around for the woman's fare. "Haven't? Then you'll have to get off the car."

"Well, I'll not get off the car," retorted the woman.

"You can't stay on here with that dog unless you've got a dog permit," insisted the conductor.

The woman got up, dog under one arm, as if to get off. But as she rose she repeated: "I'll not get off. So there!"

Still, she walked to the rear platform as if in contradiction of her own assertion. The conductor was ready to signal the motorman to stop.

But the woman had declared she wasn't going to get off, and she intended to keep her word. She poised the dog carefully in her palms, tossed him off into the street, at the same time bidding him "Go home!"

MYSTERY OF THE HOUSEHOLD

Disappearance and Return of Lady's Summer Dress Couldn't Be Laid to the Servant.

Up spoke the woman who likes to keep her apartment in order:

"A household mystery happens once in awhile," she said "I had one a few days ago about a summer dress that I bought last fall when the weather was too cold to wear it. I packed it away and forgot about it until the other day. Then I went to the box in a certain closet where I knew I had put it. Live in the Present.

It is common to overlook what is here, by keeping the eye fixed on something remote; in the same manner, present opportunities are neglected, and attainable good slighted by minds busied in extensive ranges, and intent upon future advantages.

REAL MADAME "SANS-GENE"

Story of Adventurous Career of Marie Therese Figueur Ar[illegible] in the French Army.

Everyone kn[illegible] who was so [illegible]ws the washerwoman in Victorien [illegible]familiar with Napoleon Sans-Gene' [illegible]Sardou's play, "Madame who live[illegible] but the real "Sans-Gene" in one [illegible]at that time was a dragoon and s[illegible] of the great Corsican's armies barr[illegible]ent twenty years in camps and ov[illegible]acks, in campaigns and battles r[illegible] Europe. In the Musee de L'Ar[illegible]ee in Paris a special case has just been installed inside which stands her equestrian statue.

Her real name was Marie Therese Figueur and she was born in Burgundy in 1774. When nineteen, at the end of the reign of terror, she enrolled in a cavalry regiment commanded by one of her uncles and soon acquired the nickname of "Sans-Gene."

Mme. Sans-Gene fought in Germany with the French and Batavian armies, charged at Hohenlinden, took part in the siege of Toulon, was in the Italian, Spanish and Austrian campaigns and fought at Austerlitz and in Russia. During the Hundred Days the emperor conferred the Legion of Honor upon her and she charged at Waterloo for the last time.

With the Restoration she left the army to get married. She was then thirty-nine. In the course of her martial career Sans-Gene had five horses shot under her and was wounded eight times in different engagements. She died in hospital in 1861.

How Tourists Economize.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz. A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hote. The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did, and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid!

How He Voted.

At a church court a pastor had to vote on a delicate question. Either way would estrange some of his flock. So he voted "non liquit," which is equivalent to asking to be excused. The next day a country delegate was asked how this pastor had voted on the vexed question. He said: "The man did not seem pleased. In fact, he voted that he did not like it."

NEW PROCESS WILL SAVE WASTE PRODUCTS IN IRON

Experiment Now Being Tried at Edgar Thomson Works

IRON IS A GOOD GRADE

From 60 to 65 Per Cent of What Has Been Waste Can be Saved

What has every indication of being a successful experiment is being tried this week at the Edgar Thompson plant of the Carnegie Steel company at Braddock, to save a large percentage of the waste product in the manufacture of iron and steel. A new process which is the invention of a chemist by the name of Scott is being used, the strictest secrecy being maintained in the working out of the experiment If results materialize as now indicated, it will affect the big blast furnace at Bamford and will figure in every other development that nature in the valley.

Already there has been enough success realized by the new process to demonstrate its value to the steel and iron industry of the future. At Braddock a temporary furnace has been erected and Chemist Scott employed. By the new scheme from 60 to 65 per cent what has heretofore been waste iron and slag "down comer." is being transformed into a fair product of iron.

Cars made out of heavy structural iron, lined with fire clay and fire brick are used to carry the molten slag to the furnace. This slag deposited in the furnace is subjected to greater heat than is needed in the manufacture of iron and steel by the ordinary method The cars which are about 15 by 20 feet are handled by electric motors and heavy chains and gears By a secret process the iron in the slag is crystalized and then by another process much the same as is employed in cooling iron and steel by the usual way, the product is prepared for market.

Another experiment is being tried by the Carnegie Steel company to save other waste products, among which is graphite

Woman Asks for Election

Place of Weaker Sex Wants Position as School Director in Youngwood

Youngwood has the first woman to seek a public office in Westmoreland county. Mrs. S C. Hurst, who has been nominated for school director, is making a plucky fight for the election and is receiving staunch support from the electors. GOV. TENER COMES HOME TO CAST VOTE

State Executive Spending Day Here--Came Unexpectedly Monday Evening and Visited With Friends

Rather unexpectedly Gov. J. K. Tener came into town on the 5:51 train from Pittsburg Monday evening to spend a short time here and to vote today. Mrs Tener came from Pittsburg today and the Governor and his wife are guests at the Hotel Arthur. Tonight Gov Tener will be an honor guest at the annual game banquet of the Charleroi Lodge of Elks, of which he is a member

Attending the Palace Theatre with a friend Monday he enjoyed the picture show and then went to the home of a friend where he spent the remainder of the evening

Gov. Tener votes now in the first precinct. He is interested in the Republican ticket in the county and feels it is a winner.

JUDGE SPEAKS OF ROADS TO GRAND JURY

Duty of County Commissioners is to Present Petitions

Giving utterance to some sound advice concerning the road question, which has been the subject of so much political controversy during the campaign, Judge J. F. Taylor organized the grand jury which convened at Washington yesterday. Twenty members of the panel were in attendance and D. E. Templeton of North Strabane township was appointed foreman Concerning the road petitions which the grand jury must consider Judge Tayor said:

"The constitution grants every man the privileges of petition and when a petition properly signed by the citizens, asking for a road improvement, is presented to the county commissioners, it then becomes their bounden duty to send that petition to the court In a spirit of fairness no one can call such a road petition any man's road and certainly not the county commissioners' road The county commissioners would be remiss in their duty if they did not bring the matter to the attention of the court whether it be one road or 100 roads that are petitioned for

"You must throw open the doors of the jury room when hearing these petitions and allow the citizens to talk on their need, to discuss them pro and con and give due weight to the evidence produced You are to take into consideration the need of the road, its length and width, cost per mile, the grading and the need and use such a road will have Give the road petitions a fair hearing, apply your business acumen to the proposition and encourage those communities that show progress and a desire to get out of the mud."

The court also deplored the increasing amount of criminal business in the county due to the influx of foreign and other labor into the new industrial centers. Henry Sheets, John H Frye and A B Brown of Charleroi are among the grand jurors The body adjourned until after election, and on Wednesday resume their duties.

CHAIRMAN PREDICTS VICTORY

Carothers Says Republican Ticket Will Win by Big Margin

AN UNUSUAL CAMPAIGN

Advices from Washington state that Republican County Chairman C. E Carothers last night predicted a majority of 3,000 votes for the entire Republican ticket today. Practically every section of the county had been heard from at a late hour and from over the entire county the word was that the fusion organization would be dealt a death blow

In his statement last night Chairman Carothers declared that the campaign just concluded was one of the most unusual, from a standpoint of bitterness and unnecessary abuse, the county has experienced in its entire political history

Vilification of candidates on the Republican ticket as the outgrowth of personal antagonism and jealousy early in the campaign reacted at the end against the detractors of Republicanism.

"I have utmost confidence in the intelligence of Washington county people and firmly believe that the counting of the ballots will unfold one of the greatest tributes that has ever been paid Republicanism in this county," concluded Chairman Carothers.

Candidates and Their Friends Hustling About

QUIETNESS PREVAILING

Many Split Ballots Being Cast Apparently--Republicans in Lead

Lively interest is being shown locally in the general election today but everything is quiet. Indications point to a heavy local vote. As early as the polls opened this morning there were workers out for various candidates using what influence they had in favor of those they were supporting.

Apparently there is considerable splitting of tickets a fact evidenced by the time it takes voters to mark their tickets. Still it is believed that there are many straight tickets being cast. While it is believed that the Republican ticket will go through without much trouble there is some doubt among the leading Republicans of Charleroi as to the entire success of the local ticket It is likely that most of the splitting of tickets will be on municipal officers.

Local interest centers on the election of councilmen and school directors. There are three councilmen to be elected for the full term, and one for the short term. There are seven schools directors to be elected, three for six years, two for four years and two for two years. There is also considerable interest in the justice of the peace election, but it is believed the Republican candidates will pull through without much trouble

The polls opened at 7 o'clock and voting was begun in the various precincts promptly. There is an absence of rancor that in many other communities is noticeable. Over the county it is believed there will be a good vote.

EVERY VOTER'S DUTY.

By the time this issue of the Mail reaches its readers the most of the electors will have cast their ballots in the county and municipal election that is being held today. Many electors, however, remain away from the polls under the mistaken idea that the election of local candidates is not of sufficient warrant to leave their business affairs to cast their ballots. It is to these that this last appeal is made—to urge them to exercise their right of franchise and vote their convictions at the polls for the candidates of their choice.

While the local elections may not seem important to many people it is these very offices that have to do with their daily life. The conduct of the public schools has to do with the primary education of our children, and constitutes in most cases the entire educational training that will be received. The borough affairs are important also and have a direct bearing upon the business prosperity of the town. In county affairs the people are directly concerned, as much of their well being and comfort is dependent upon the correct and economic conduct of the county fiscal business

Presumably the qualifications of the various candidate have been settled in their respective primary elections. Each ticket had a wide range of candidates to choose from, and each party now has a ticket to vote for that represents a choice of the majority of his compatriots, who agree along the lines of certain policies. It is therefore incumbent upon these electors to support the ticket chosen at the primary, in the proper conduct of political and party ethics. The whole question of local government is up to the voters today, and every voter should exercise his right of franchise.

NEED STATE OVERSIGHT

According to the Philadelphia Press the testimony of engineers on the construction of the Austin dam is strongly condemnatory of that structure. Such overwhelming catastrophies as that which so nearly obliterated the town of Austin are usually characterized as "the act of God." but the evidence accumulates here that this destruction of life and property was "the act of men," of those who are responsible for a dam badly constructed and imperfectly secured

The engineer for the Board of Water Supply for New York city testifies that the dam was too thin for its height. Prof McKibben of Lehigh University, testifies that the foundation, design, construction and operation of the dam were all faulty. Other engineers describe the worrk in the dam as "skinned work." Economy clearly had more consideration than security in its construction Big risks were taken. Whether knowingly or not, and the disaster which followed was plainly invited by the weakness of the structure.

This is the evidence of experts who spoke on this matter with unusual harmony. The heavy weight of the dam was imposed on sandstone resting on shale. It was undermined by the pressure of water in the dam, slid forward, cracked and leaked Its weakness was proclaimed in a startling manner for several months with slight repairs under heavy pressure of water. It was all the time a dreadful, continuance menace to the town below, which nevertheless waited unprepared for its inevitable doom.

The evidence of those engineering authorities is a most amazing revelation of the fearful risks men take in their ignorance and confidence and a conclusive argument for a vigilant State oversight of dams that will prevent them from becoming at any hour as dangerous and deadly as a bloody battle or wasting pestilence.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The presence of Governor John K. Tener and Executive Controller S. C. Todd in Charleroi, who came from the State capital for the purpose of casting their ballots at the fall election, recalls an incident which occurred during the summer Shortly after the Plate Glass fastory shut down, which with the idleness of the Charleroi Coal works made things rather dull locally, a Fallowfield township resident who is noted for his drollery, poked his head in the door of the Bank of Charleroi and said to Kerfoot W. Daly, the cashier:

"They tell me, Kerfoot, that your town of Charleroi has all gone to h——l since John Tener and Sam Todd's gone to Harrisburg. And they also tell me, Kerfoot that they've got John Jenkins down to Harrisburg smellin' milk."

Speaking of John Jenkins recalls another story the boys about town tell on him when he was officiating as leader and drummer in the orchestra at the Star theatre here. The house was running vaudeville, and once when a lady dancer was on the boards John sought to have some fun at her expense. Procuring three or four old linen collars he laid them down beside the instruments which he operated Presently when the dancer was executing some of her most animated steps the drummer leaned over and snatching one of the collars tore it suddenly apart.

The loud rip brought the dancer to an abrupt halt, and her hands stole quickly to the back of her waistband Finding it intact she again resumed her dancing, when she was startled by another loud rip Again she took a hurried inventory of her somewhat scanty attire, but could find nothing wrong, but when another loud rip resounded through the theatre, she cut the act short and hastily retired, refusing utterly to respond to the hearty encore to which she was accorded.

Youth Had Much to Learn.

An English gentleman once fell from his horse and injured his thumb. The pain increasing, he was obliged to send for a surgeon One day the doctor was unable to visit the patient, and therefore sent his son instead. "Have you visited the Englisnman?" said his father, in the evening. "Yes," replied the young man, "and I have drawn out a thorn which I ascertained to be the chief cause of his agony." "Fool!" exclaimed the father "I trusted you had more sense; now there is an end to the job."

Degrees of Opinion.

Let us not say to ourselves that the best truth always lies in moderation, in the decent average . . At the time of the Spanish inquisition the opinion of good sense and of the just medium was certainly that people ought not to burn too large a number of heretics, extreme and unreasonable opinion demanded that they should burn none at all.—Maeterlinck.

An Incident of the Road.

"Stop!" cried the man in the road. "You are exceeding the speed limit."

"That's all nonsense," retorted Binks, bringing his car to a standstill.

"That's what they all say," said the man in the road, climbing into the car. "You can tell your story to the magistrate at Hinktown—jest seven miles up the road. Start along, please."

They drove on in silence to Hinktown, where, as the car drew up in front of the courthouse, the man in the road got out.

"Much obliged for the lift," said he. "You can settle that matter of speed with the magistrate if you want to. As a stranger in these here parts I don't think my word would go for much."

DRIVING OUT THE BOGUS FOOD MEN

Effective Work of State Bureau in Behalf of Consumer.

DEVICES OF ADULTERATORS

Commissioner Foust's Agents In Every County—Vigorous Enforcement of New Laws.

The adulterators and poisoners of food products are being driven out of business in Pennsylvania. The determination of the state administration to protect the health of the people by the rigid enforcement of the pure food laws is removing the evils of an industry, which in recent years has invaded every community in this country. The regulation of the manufacture and sale of food products in Pennsylvania is being commented on approvingly by officials of the agricultural department at Washington, as well as by officials of the dairy and food commissions in every other state.

Effective legislation for the protection of the consumer from the manufacturer of bogus foods was made necessary by new conditions. With the rapid increase of population there came a change in the methods of preparation and manufacture of food products unknown a quarter of a century ago. With these manufactures came the doper and adulterator. And he increased and multiplied. Hardly a commodity that finds a place upon the table of the consumer escaped his sinister influence. This state of affairs led to the enactment of laws regulating the manufacture of food products and appropriations for their enforcement by the dairy and food commissioner.

Pure Food Campaign Statewide.

The fight for pure food for the people is a notable feature of the administration of Governor John K. Tener. In many of his speeches during the campaign last year Governor Tener emphasized the necessity of vigorous measures against the dopers, and his pledges on the stump in this direction are being fulfilled. This is made possible by supplementary pure food enactments by the legislature at its recent session. James Foust, the dairy and food commissioner, who is directing the campaign against manufacturers of bogus foods with marked ability, has assumed an uncompromising attitude toward the violator of the pure food laws. Into every county the commissioner has sent agents to secure evidence upon which to base prosecutions. The result of his vigorous methods are indicated by a long list of convictions during the past eight months.

The work of the food department in providing the consumer with products of high standard is illustrated by the enforcement of an act of the legislature signed by Governor Tener April 6. This legislation is aimed at the manufacturer of spurious sausages. It defines the process of sausage making and establishes the lawful ingredients of that product by defining what are not lawful ingredients. As the season is approaching when buckwheat cakes and sausage occupy a prominent place in the breakfast menu, the sausage producer is a busy man.

The Shrinking Sausage Links.

It has been the practice of many manufacturers to take 60 per cent of meat, and add thereto 15 per cent of potato flour or some other cereal, permitting the addition of 25 per cent water, which the flour would readily absorb. The sausage looks all right in the market, but when it is put into the frying pan it begins to shrink like a cake of ice in the sun. When the cook makes a stab at the stuffed skin the water blows after the fashion of a bursted fire hose, and the plethoric link diminishes in size with amazing suddenness.

Now meat costs the butcher an average of 10 cents per pound and potato flour is worth a trifle less than 3 cents, while the water is clear profit, hence the temptation to construct the sausage along unlawful lines.

Adulterations in the sausage line are not confined to the pork variety. Bologna is mixed in much the same way and is also boiled in a harmful chemical concoction to give it a rich color, all of which is forbidden by law. Commissioner Foust insists that people who pay the current high prices for sausage are entitled to have their purchase all meat, with the privilege of adding the other ingredients themselves, if they so desire.

No Compromise With Offenders.

While the economical spirit of modern merchandizing manages to work up all of the animal, including horns, hoofs and intestines, into by-products, in the future in Pennsylvania the product must be just what it is represented when sold to the consumer or the state bureau will know the reason why. The commissioner has no desire to take snap judgment on any one or cause trouble because of real ignorance, and [illegible] he gives fair warning to offenders.

The [illegible] sausage manufacturers and [illegible] urging that the enforcement [illegible] law be suspended with respect to goods bought by retailers and [illegible] upon their shelves prior to the passage of the sausage law, but Mr. Foust has replied that the manufacturers must take back their goods. Throughout the state Commissioner Foust's agents are at work among the sausage manufacturers. The new law provides that upon conviction the manufacturer shall pay a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $200 or to undergo imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, or either or both, in the discretion of the court.

Warning For the Oyster Man.

With the coming of the "R" months the oyster dealer is again active. The skeptical buyer of the shucked bivalves may inquire, "and how busy is the pump?" The skeptical may take comfort. The state solons have considered his woes and provided for his relief. The dairy and food commissioner has instructed his force of agents to be on guard, that the unlawful business partnership between the oyster pail and the pump shall be dissolved and the practice ended by which the public is compelled to pay the regular price of oysters, 40 cents per quart, for water and so-called juice. Recently a woman went to Commissioner Foust's office with a vessel containing oysters. She had paid 40 cents for the contents. On examination it was found that there was less than a pint of oysters. The rest was ice and water. The pure food law forbids the addition to any article of food of any substance cheaper than the original or anything that will adulterate it in any manner. Some fish dealers are in the habit of buying oysters and filling up the tubs with ice. The ice melts, and the resultant water is sold to the customers as juice. Under the law the customer is entitled to oysters packed as closely as they will lie together.

Commissioner Foust has informed the dealers of the law's requirements, and any dealer who finds himself in the clutches of the law for adding ice or water to oysters will be prosecuted. If the dealers want to avoid trouble they should sell their oysters from the original packages and place the ice around the outside, as the law requires.

Milk Dealers Pay Fines.

The conviction of nearly 400 milkmen for violating the milk law enacted by the legislature last spring has had a wholesome effect upon the dealer who regarded that law with indifference. During one month the new milk law was put to the test in 261 towns in fifty-two counties. In 211 towns there were violations, showing that there was vast need for a law establishing standards of milk and cream purity in the state. Agents of the department discovered that many dealers scouted the law when they heard of its existence and continued to adulterate their milk and cream, feeling certain that they would not be detected.

Milk dealers in many communities had a system by which they were promptly informed of the arrival of the state agent and thus were enabled to conceal their practices. Recently the pure food agents have worked so quietly that they were enabled to secure samples from these violators without being suspected. The first intimation the men who watered their milk had came when they were invited to the magistrate's office to pay a fine of $25. They paid and decided that in the end it would be more profitable to sell real milk and cream.

Now that the pasture months are closing and the price of butter has advanced the oleo man renews his smile. Lest he forget the past and the householder be uneasy, a warning word comes from the dairy and food commissioner. The legislature permits the sale of oleo, but only such as is kept free from all coloration causing it to look like yellow butter. The superior court, in an opinion written by Judge Rice, has declared that the law prohibits the sale of oleo made in resemblance of butter, no matter by what process this coloration is secured. Upon this decision the commissioner takes his stand. The legislature regarded this provision so important for the protection of the consumer and of the honest dealer and butter maker that, despite great pressure, it refused at the last session to strike it from the law.

Convictions In Oleo Cases.

Cases brought by Commissioner Foust before the courts of Schuylkill, Northampton and Venango counties for violations of the oleo law have been terminated by the conviction of the offenders. Judge Kennedy, of Allegheny county, recently sentenced a dealer to pay a fine of $1000 and for one year's parole for a second offense. It is significant that of all the federal oleo licenses issued in Pittsburg by the internal revenue bureau for the year beginning July 1, 1911, not one was sought for the sale of colored oleo, that is, of oleomargarine colored by added dyes. This is a marked improvement in a district where in recent years many federal licenses were issued for the sale of such oleo, illegal in Pennsylvania, and where "moonshiners" sold great quantities of dyed oleo without taking out either federal or state licenses. The food bureau's agents have been instructed to visit every store in their respective districts and vigilantly see to it that the law is obeyed.

During Governor Tener's administration, embracing the period from Jan. 17 to Oct. 1, the dairy and food bureau analyzed about 8000 food samples and prosecutions to the number of about 1000 were started. These prosecutions were based upon violation of laws regulating the sale of eggs, doped fruit syrups, ice creams low in fat, lard, fresh meats drugged with sulphites, milk low in fat and containing formaldehyde, non-alcoholic drinks sweetened with saccharin, a poison, and including ginger ale containing pepper, foods adulterated in various ways, including oleomargarine, fresh sausage containing flour and water, vinegar, distilled or colored, and other products.

The campaign for pure food does not cost the taxpayer a dollar. On the contrary, although not intended to be a revenue collecting agency, the state bureau is more than self-supporting. During the period of January to October the dairy and food commissioner collected in fines and from other sources $110,294. The total disbursements of his office were $64,508. All receipts of the office are turned into the state treasury for the use of the commonwealth, the expenses of the bureau being paid from a specific appropriation made by the legislature.

Misuse of Via.

A stroll through the shipping district gives many a wrench to the purist's soul. "In front of all the commission houses," he said, "I see bales and barrels labeled 'via boat' or 'via train.' Why does not somebody tell the shipping clerks that every time they write that they are insulting the English and every other language? 'Via' can be applied properly only to the place through which a parcel passes, not to the means of transportation."

Youth's Commercial Instinct.

A boy of nine, who had never previously witnessed a collection in church, was deeply interested, and when the bags were finally borne off by clergy and choir in procession, proclaimed in a loud whisper of sympathetic excitement, "Now they're going to share it out!"

Fitted for the Business.

"My son John," proudly remarked Mrs. McAllister to some one who had inquired about the family, "he's runnin' the drug store now. He's been doing it for a year or more. You know he was to college an' studied palmistry so's to fit himself for the business."

Honest Advice to Consumptives

Somehow there exists a vast amount of skepticism as to the possibility of curing Consumption. We state none but facts, and are sincere in what we assert.

If ourselves afflicted with Tuberculosis, we should do precisely what we ask others to do—take Eckman's Alterative promptly and faithfully. The reason we should do this and warrant we have for asking all Consumptives to take it, is that we have the reports of many cures, one of which follows:—

1619 Susquehanna Ave., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, the number totaled nearly one hundred. Our family physician advised another climate, as to remain would probably be fatal; however, I remained and in February of 1902, I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. I was again advised to go to another part of the country. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I learned of Eckman's Alterative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced 'well' or 'cured.' Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneumonia and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a cure.

"I am at present in excellent health and feel that as long as I can obtain Eckman's Alterative, I have no fear of Consumption. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done."

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and

A Fallible Father-in-Law.

Two of the gilded youth of Providence, R. I., were in Newport and came upon a newsboy.

"Let me have a paper," said one of them, giving the boy 50 cents

"I can't change that," said the boy

"Lend me a nickel," the gilded youth asked his companion.

"Oh, bother, let him have the 50 cents"

"No indeed! You let him have it if you like My father-in-law is not dead, and yours is"—Life.

Dignified Rebuke.

Philip of Macedonia, after the battle of Chaeronea, where he defeated the Greeks, sent a boasting and insolent letter to the King of Sparta. Archidamus, the king, sent this caustic rejoinder: "If thou wilt measure thy shadow, thou wilt find that it hath not increased in size since thy victory."

Woman's Superiority.

The Ghost Walked.

The mistaken idea that one's troubles end with death was set aside in Starwich v Washington Cut Glass Company 21 Wash. Dec No. 18 (Adv. Sheets), in which the supreme court of Washington first announced that the defendant corporation "gave up the ghost." How it died is not fully apparent, but having yielded its spirit to the one who made it, it still retained its worldly cares, for in the next sentence the court said. "But that did not deliver it from the burden of its contracts"

Evidently, in this case, the ghost walked, being "in torment." Who shall henceforth say that corporations have no souls?—Case and Comment.

Gem of Ancient Architecture.

The Oratory of Gallerus, situated on the Dingle promontory in Kerry, is probably the oldest place of Christian worship in the United Kingdom. It is unique in its architecture, for it was built without mortar, and the arch was formed direct from the ground level by the peculiar placing of the stones In the east gable is the only window in the building, while in the west is the small doorway The building, which is now one of the national monuments of the Emerald Isle, has recently been restored to perfect condition.

HAD NO PERMIT FOR DOGGIE

So the Woman Dropped Her Pet Off the Car and Resumed Her Seat.

The little woman with the laundry blue and gangrenous green flowers on her hat all scrambled up into a Wilton rug design got on the car carrying a dog It was one of those aristocratic, foolish-looking dogs that couldn't overtake a Welsh rabbit.

"Got a permit for that dawg?" asked the conductor when he came around for the woman's fare "Haven't? Then you'll have to get off the car."

"Well, I'll not get off the car," retorted the woman

"You can't stay on here with that dog unless you've got a dog permit," insisted the conductor

The woman got up, dog under one arm, as if to get off But as she rose she repeated "I'll not get off So there!"

Still, she walked to the rear platform as if in contradiction of her own assertion The conductor was ready to signal the motorman to stop

But the woman had declared she wasn't going to get off, and she intended to keep her word She poised the dog carefully in her palms, tossed him off into the street, at the same time bidding him "Go home!"

Then she came back into the [illegible] and dropped languidly into her [illegible] seat with a bored tilt to her face.

MYSTERY OF THE HOUSEHOLD

Disappearance and Return of Lady's Summer Dress Couldn't Be Laid to the Servant.

Up spoke the woman who likes to keep her apartment in order:

"A household mystery happens once in awhile," she said "I had one a few days ago about a summer dress that I bought last fall when the weather was too cold to wear it. I packed it away and forgot about it until the other day Then I went to the box in a certain closet where I knew I had put it. The dress wasn't there I looked through the rest of the closet without any better success Then I got excited a[illegible] turned everything upside down e[illegible] where that I thought it could [illegible]e. Live in the Present.

It is common to overlook what is here, by keeping the eye fixed on something remote; in the same manner, present opportunities are neglected, and attainable good slighted by minds busied in extensive ranges, and intent upon future advantages.

REAL MADAME "SANS-GENE"

Story of Adventurous Career of Marie Therese Figueur Ar[illegible] in the French Army.

Everyone kn[illegible] who was so [illegible]ows the washerwoman in Victorien [illegible] familiar with Napoleon Sans-Gene [illegible] Sardou's play, "Madame who lived [illegible] but the real "Sans Gene" in one [illegible] at that time was a dragoon and s[illegible] of the great Corsican's armies barr[illegible]pent twenty years in camps and ov[illegible]acks, in campaigns and battles [illegible] Europe. In the Musee de L'Ar[illegible]ee in Paris a special case has just been installed inside which stands her equestrian statue.

Her real name was Marie Therese Figueur and she was born in Burgundy in 1774. When nineteen, at the end of the reign of terror, she enrolled in a cavalry regiment commanded by one of her uncles and soon acquired the nickname of "Sans-Gene."

Mme. Sans-Gene fought in Germany with the French and Batavian armies, charged at Hohenlinden, took part in the siege of Toulon, was in the Italian, Spanish and Austrian campaigns and fought at Austerlitz and in Russia. During the Hundred Days the emperor conferred the Legion of Honor upon her and she charged at Waterloo for the last time.

With the Restoration she left the army to get married She was then thirty-nine. In the course of her martial career Sans-Gene had five horses shot under her and was wounded eight times in different engagements. She died in hospital in 1861.

How Tourists Economize.

A comedy of economy is reported from St. Moritz A stout couple, accompanied by a son and daughter who were also "thick," as the Germans translate stout, entered a crowded hotel at the busy time of lunch and ordered one lunch at table d'hote The father sat down and finished two helpings of soup and all the bread near him and left the table, his place being taken for the entrees by his wife, who had been waiting with her children in the hotel corridor until her husband appeared

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches The paterfamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid!

How He Voted.

At a church court a pastor had to vote on a delicate question Either way would estrange some of his flock So he voted "non liquit," which is equivalent to asking to be excused. The next day a country delegate was asked how this pastor had voted on the vexed question He said: "The man did not seem pleased In fact, he voted that he did not like it"

Railroad Cars for Automobiles.

I'll Look Around a Little

THAT'S what four lookers said Saturday afternoon. We were satisfied. Within an hour three of them were back and bought the shoes they had tried on, and the universal opinion was that

"Our Shoes Fit Better, Have More Style Than any in Town and Prices No Higher."

It pleases us to have people make comparison. It's the only way to tell who has the best.
